Travis Takes Gross Medal in the Handleap Opening of the New Englewood Links Good Finish at St. Andrews.

Link Good Finish at St. Andrews.

In 1899, its first try out, Findlay Douglas and Walter J. Travis were both beaten for the championship of the Metropolitan Goif Association by Herbert M. Harriman, but since then the title has oscillated between Association by Herbert M. Harriman, but since then the title has oscillated between the two, Douglas being the survivor yesterday in the final at the Deal Golf Club. The sensational feature of the week, the throwing out of the card of Dr. Culver, which would have won the low score medal, on the protest of A. E. Taylor, will have no aftermath. C. E. McMahon, who attested the card, has sent word to the committee that Taylor was right and the score for the twelfth hole should have been a 7 and not a 6. Dr. Culver, too, now admits that he was mistaken. After the confusion attendant on playing out of the mari bit, when McMahon, who had made a 7, told be alsotor he was a stroke under, he put down at 6. Dr. Culver, at the time, he put down at 6. Dr. Culver at the time, he put down at 6. Dr. Culver at the time, he put down at 6. Dr. Culve thought this was right, but he was since decided that he made a mistake.

The disqualification of Dr. Culver made Travis the winner of the low score prize in the qualifying round. With C. P. Cory, he won the four-ball cups, and yesterday he added the gross score medal of the handleap to his trophies-taking about everything in sight, barring the title. Douglas won outright a championship medal, and the Nassau Country Club will have possession of the cham-

Country Club will have possession of the championship plate for the year. John Moller, etc., who played a good game all the week, was the runner up to Douglas, and the net prize in the handicap was won by 0. Woodward of the Marine and Field Club. The handicap record stands:

1503, Garden City—Net, Arthur Taylor, Oakiand, 129, 34—102; gross, dames A. Tyug, Baltusrol, 176, 1909, Kassau—Net, Allan Kennaday, Montclair, 160, 14—162; gross, F. S. Douglas, Nassau, 169, 1612; gròss, W. J. Travis, Garden City, 176, 1902, Tuxydo-Net, John Moller, Jr., Lakewood, 160, 20—140 and J. W. Griggs, North Jersey, 176, 80—140 (Moller wont play off); gross, F. S. Douglas, 188.

President's Russell's cup, for those who did not qualify for the championship, will so to Newburgh, the winner being Joseph Chadwick, Jr., from the Powelton club of the Hudson River Golf Association. The match play and the handicap were all at thirty-six holes:

Meller had the better drive from the first match play and the handicap were all at thirty-six holes.

Melier had the better drive from the first tee in setting out for the championship final, for Douglas hit a skyscraper that went only half way for the bunker. Douglas recovered in a way fleat shocked Moller and his caddie, dasper Lynch, for he dropped the ball within six inches of the cup with the mid-iron, stealing the hole in 3to 4. They halved the second, and Moller won the third, in 4 to 5, for Douglas overplayed his second. It was the last hole Mollor was to win going out, and Douglas was 4 up at the turn. The Lakewood player won the tenth, in 4 to 5, Douglas being over the green on his third, while Moller ran down a long put, and the eleventh, after Douglas had been in the bunker on his second, was halved in 5. Two more were halved, when Douglas won the fourteenth in a par 4 and was again 4 up. Douglas's second for the fifteenth was trapped in the ditch and Mollor won in 5 to 6. The next two were won by Douglas in par figures, leaving him 5 up for the morning, as the cichteenth was halved in 5 through Douglas missing a foot putto win it. This was the only green that Douglas had needed 3 puts on to this point. He did so Douglas and he won by 0 up and 9 to play.

RELIANCE AN EASY WINNER.

DEFEATS COLUMBIA AND CONSTI-TUTION TURNING TO WINDWARD.

Proves a Wonder in the Light Air-Wind Fluky, and After New Yacht Finishes the Others Are Becalmed-Constitution and Columbia Make Protests.

The Reliance again finished first in the race sailed on the Sound yesterday. It was the last of the Glen Cove series, and proved to be the most unsatisfactory race of the lot. The Reliance managed to carry a little breeze with her until she crossed the finishing line, but before the Constitution was able to get to the line there was almost a flat calm. The Columbia was still more unlucky. She managed to get within 200 yards of the committee boat, and was more than an hour trying to make that distance.

Early in the morning there was a nice sailing breeze and it was confidently expected that the race would prove to be an exciting one. The wind was coming in from the east, too, and this would make the first leg of the course a beat to windward. In expectation of such a rare treat there was a large fleet of steam yachts to follow the racers around the course and there seemed to be hundreds of small sailing craft.

The yachts left their moorings about 11 o'clock and reached down to the starting line. The regatta committee on board he steam yacht Privateer signalled the course shortly before the preparatory signal was made. It was the same as the one over which the yachts sailed on Thursday. The first leg was eleven miles east by north, a quarter north; the second. three miles north-northwest, and the third eleven miles southwest by west half west. Promptly at 12 o'clock the preparatory signal was made. The wind then was east half north. The tide was running west, but the wind had dropped considerably and was only blowing about six or seven miles an hour. The yachts began to manœuvre for position, and Capta. Barr and Rhodes had a pretty fight that lasted for fifteen minutes.

Shortly after the preparatory signal

Shortly after the preparatory signal Capt. Rhodes succeeded in placing the Constitution to weather of the Reitance, and he kept her there until the yachts went over the line. After about seven minutes had elapsed all three of the boats were at the southern end of the line, heading to the stortboard task. to the northwest on the starboard tack.
The Columbia was in the lead and the Constitution had the Reliance under her lee.
The Columbia took the port tack and headed back again over the course she had just sailed and forced the Reliance and Constitution to bear away to avoid fouling her. These two yachts under the rule had the right of way The Constitution and Reliance then reached along the line, passed to the west-ward of the committee boat, with the Con-stitution in the lead, and when about two minutes were left before the starting gun was to fire the Reliance took the port tack and Constitution tacked immediately after-ward. This put the Reliance in the lead.

ward. This put the Reliance in the lead, but the Constitution shot up on her quarter, established an overlap as they passed astern of the committee boat and seemed to have gained the coveted position.

Both yachts were too soon at the line. Capt. Barr bore off with the Reliance, but before Capt. Rhodes realized that the line was so near he had the Constitution over and she was recalled by the committee. As soon as the gun was fired the Reliance hauled her wind and stood on the port tack toward the Long Island shore. Constitution tacked and then wore around and gybed, and as she crossed the line on stitution tacked and then wore around and gybed, and as she crossed the line on the port tack the Columbia was crossing on the starboard tack at the other end. The two yachts quickly, drew together, Columbia having right of way.

Capt. Rhodes, however, held his course, and just when it seemed as though they must foul Columbia gave way and took the port tack. A protest flag was flown in Columbia's rigging a few minutes later.

All three carried baby jib topsails, but that on the Reliance was smaller than on the other two yachts. It was a tiny little sail, but it helped her wonderfully in going to windward. When well in toward the Long Island shore they took the starboard to windward. When well in toward the Long Island shore they took the starboard tack. The Reliance had stood in further than the other two, and when they came off shore Capt. Barr gave an exhibition of the skill in working a beat to windward in light weather which has won him fame on both sides of the Atlantic. He held the Reliance so that she got the flood tide under her lee how and was being set up all the time. on the Constitution and Columbia the larger jib topsails were knocking the yachts off a little, so that they took the tide on the weather bow, and it was not long before weather bow, and it was not long belove there was a wide gap between the three boats. The wind was dropping every min-ute, and as they drew near Gunter Island Point it backed to northeast by cest and then a little later it hauled to east-north-east. The yachts tacked in toward Oys-ter Pay and then worked out by Uloyd's east. The yachts tacked in toward Oyster Bay and then worked out by Lloyd's Neck. The wind became very fluky and much lighter but one boat did not seem to be worse served than another.

In the little bit of a sea that the eastern wind had made the Reliance appeared to rock a good deal, and she pounded considerably more than the other boats, but the pounding did not seem to interfere with her sailing. The Reliance passed the first mark at 1:56:58, the Constitution at 2:02:24 and the Columbia at 2:09:10. The gains for this eleven-mile beat are shown gains for this eleven-mile beat are shown in the following:

The Reliance had beaten the Constitu-ion by 4 minutes and 5 seconds and the columbia by 10 minutes and 47 seconds. Columbia by 10 minutes and 47 seconds.

The wind was very light after turning the first mark, and at one time it got around to the north and then hauled again to east northeast. The Reliance carried her baby jib topsail all the way to the second mark. Constitution changed hers for a larger one when half way over the course. Before the Columbia got to the second mark the wind was east northeast, and she carried a balloon jib topsail, but this breeze died out before she had got to the second mark, and she was becalmed there for several minutes. The times taken at the second mark were as follows:

On the three-mile reach across the Sound he Reliance had beaten the Constitution the Reliance had beaten the Constitution by 5 minutes 11 seconds and Columbia by 18 minutes 40 seconds.

They gybed at the second mark and eased booms off to starboard. Balloon jib topsails were set on all three, but the Reliance was the only one that carried hers all the way home. The wind was fluky to the finish and was hauling and backing all the afternoon. The Reliance's jib topsail was a small one, just a little bit larger than an ordinary reaching jib topsail and it suited the conditions perfectly. The balloons on the Constitution and Columbia were much larger and when the wind got Statistics from every State in the Union show the enormous increase in drughabits. In many States legislation is constantly being enacted to head off the use of Morphine, Opium and Cocaine. But no legislation can take away the awful need for the drug from those who have become habituated to its use. Once the habit is formed, its clutch is deadly and constantly lightens. Neither doctor nor institute have h therto been able to effectively cope with this trouble. Every effort toward that end has proved a failure in the great majority of cases, and unscrupulous men have preyed upon the despair of those who sought their help, allured by promises which could not be performed,

Dr. Greene, whose lectures have been listened to by thousands, year after year in Carnegie Hall and Grand Central Palace, his perfected an absolute cure for drug habits at any and every stage, and knowing how the family and friends of those who are habituated to the drug are filled with anxiety, has devised a plan by which his treatment may be secured at practically no cost. This plan is the outcome of Dr. Greene's desire to bring the splendid benefits of his cure to the reach of thousands of sufferers

The safety and sureness of the cure effected by Dr. Greene is beyond all question. The most pronounced drug habitue will be relieved from the power of the drug from the hour the treatment begins and need never take nor never desire another grain, even though he or she has been using fifty to sixty grains per day hypodermically. The treatment lasts from two to three months, and is taken at

To cure ten thousand people of this great trouble within one year is Dr. Greene's present strong ambition, and to this end a year will be devoted. The plan Dr. Greene has formed amounts so nearly to free treatment that it would be so called by anyone else less careful about misleading statements.

Sufferers from drug habits to whom this announcement comes are invited to call or write at once for particulars. Friends of those who need this treatment are urged to co-operate. Address: Dr. Greene, 101 Fifth Avenue, New York.

The regatta committee later on said they knew nothing about a protest and the yachtsmen had until Monday to file their objections with the committee. ALCOVE OF IRISH LITERATURE Proposed for Public Library-Four Irist Plays This Week. The Irish Literary Society, recently or canized to promote interest in old Irish literature, was addressed last night in Carnegie Lyceum by Charles Johnson, Trinity college man and author of a history of Ireland. He lectured on "The Irish Literary Revival." Among other things he said that there was in old Irish writings and traditions material for an even greater stimulus to world literature than was received from Homer's epics and that when the old Celtic literature was thoroughly understood he expected to see it do much toward conquering the materialism of the day and uplifting spiritual ideals in literaday and uplifting spiritual ideas in literature.

The Hon. Morgan J. O'Brien presided. He is one of the trustees of the New York Public Library, and he appealed for a liberal gift to establish in that institution an alcove of Irish literature. Donations have been made, he said, by Hebrews, Germans and others for similar purposes.

On June 3 and 4 the society will present three of Yeats's Irish plays at the Carnegie Lyceum—"The Land of Heart's Desire," "A Pot of Broth" and "Cathleen-ni-Hoolihan." They will be under the management DeGuichard Wins Motor-Paced Race in Providence.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., May 30 .- The motor pared races that opened the season this after-noon at the Providence Coliseum resulted in the victory of DeGuichard, the young Providence rider, over Joe Nelson and Bennie Munroe. Munroe made the fastest mile that was made during the afternoon columbia was very unlucky. Her bowsprit was lapped with the stern of the committee boat and she drifted backward and it was 6 o'clock before she got over the line. The Reliance was 1 hour 31 minutes 41 seconds sailing the last leg of the course, a reach of eleven miles. She course, a reach of eleven miles. She crossed the finishing line at 3:50:17, and Constitution at 4:16:03.

As the Constitution crossed the line as the course, a reach of eleven miles. She course, a reach of eleven miles. She beaten by one mile and Munroe by ten laps. Among the other events Edward Forrest of Brooklyn came in first in the two mile open, and Adam Byerman of New York was third in the same race,

PARTED FROM HIS WIFE-POLICE GUARD HIS PROPERTY.

When the Collinses Were Divorced, the Wife Also Knowing the Formula, Began Manufacture of His Invention-Courts Sustained Her in the Use of His Name.

On the top floor of the office building at 93 Maiden lane, in a little back room, where he had lived for the last four years Samuel Parke Collins, an inventer, saidto have been rich once, died, early yesterday morning, of consumption. Although he had a wife and two children living, according to those who knew him, they had become separated from him. His old friend, Samuel Wilson, who had been Collins's sole comnanion and nurse for the last two weeks.

Wilson notified the police and they took charge of the two rooms Collins occupied. They will guard the rooms until his safe and other effects can be delivered to the Public Administrator. Whatever property Collins left he got through the sale of patent liquid ink eradicator. According to Wilson, his dying injunction was to see that this should not be touched by any one but a brother and a niece, whom he asked Wilson to notify. The brother, William Collins, lives in Rochester, and the niece, Hattie Collins, in Oswego. Wilson notified them yesterday and received word from the niece that she would be here this morning. Collins was 72 years old and, according o Wilson and others who knew him, it was mainly because of his eccentricities that his end came among such surroundings. The old man came from Oswego and about forty years ago invented a chemical preparation to remove ink, which met with a large sale. In 1882 he opened a large establishment at 27 Union Square and began to have orders from foreign countries. He travelled around the world and maintained fine howe on the West Side. The

to have orders from foreign countries. He travelled around the world and maintained a fine home on the West Side. Tenyears ago he went down to Wall Street and, according to his friend Wilson, dropped $75,000 in wheat.

About seven years ago he and his wife, who was thirty years his junior, were divorced. Then, according to the old man's friends, his wife, who knew the formula of his preparation, started in business in opposition with great success. Collins formed a stock company and brought suit over the right of his wife to use his name. The case dragged through all the courts and the United States Supreme Court, where it was finally taken, decided that as Collins had given his wife voluntarily the secret of the preparation and as she had not chosen to change her name after their separation she could not be prevented from using the preparation or the name.

Mrs. Collins has since continued to manufacture the preparation and, according to Mrs. Collins has since continued to manufacture the preparation and, according to her husband's friends, has made enough to maintain a fine home at 2186 Anthony avenue in The Bronx, where her 20-year-old daughter lives with her. Collins moved downtown and took the two rooms at the top of 93 Maiden lane, which he fitted up both as an office and living apartments. He covered the rafters with tasseled paper, papered the walls himself and made out of the place a most peculiar apartment. In the past four years he has cocked his own meals but has employed two girls to assist him in the business which he started in competition with his wife.

Wilson got the rooms where he lived free for his services as janitor. In one room

Wilson got the rooms where he lived free for his services as janitor. In one room was a roll-top desk, a folding bed, the safe and a large picture of Collina's daughter decorated with all sorts of flowers. In the other room were his chemicals. He kept his money in a downtown bank, according to Wilson, but what bank the latter did not know. The checkbook, presumably, is in the safe. In the desk were found $10 and a lot of letters. Collins, according to Wilson, intended to go to Liberty in a few weeks, and his death occurred suddenly.

"Before he died," said Wilson, "he told me not to let his wife or children touch a thing; only his brother and niece. I'm going to stay here until the niece comes, and then, I guess, I'll get out."

His son William is supposed to live in the city.

CORNELL WINS JUNIOR RACE. nasyivania and Harvard Crews Easily

Beaten in Annual Event. ITHACA, N Y., May 30 .- With the shades of night enveloping the crews, the referee's boat and the observation train and all, and with the scant light which a new moon would afford beaming down on the oarsmen and spectators. Cornell again won the annual junior boat race, with Harvard and Pennsylvania as competitors. Pennsylvania was second and Harvard third.

Cornell's shell was a good five lengths shead of the Quakers, while Pennsylvania led the Crimson by about two lengths. Cornell's time was 11 minutes 14% seconds ennsylvania's was 11 minutes 36% seconds, and Harvard's was 11 minutes and 46 seconds. The preliminary race between the Philadelphia Central High School and Cascadilla school was postponed until Monday on account of the lateness of the hour. The race early developed into a procession. At the startHarvard seemed to catch the water first and the Pennsylvanians next, and for half a dozen strokes Cornell was behind, but it did not take Capt Edmonston's eight long to force the nose of the slender shell shead of all other contestants, and this the eight did while rowing not more than thirty strokes to the minute. At the quarter mile, Cornell was half a boat length ahead of Pennsylvania which crew had just begun to get the start of the Crimson eight. From this point the Ithacans gradually increased the lead and the race gradually increased the lead and the race was never in doubt. At the mile Cornell rowed thirty-two strokes to the minute and here Pennsylvania made a spurt, but did not cut down the lead to any material extent.

Harvard fought hard and well. Although it was very dark and the water was strange no man showed the white feather, and the Crimson pulled with might and main with a high stroke to cut down the Quakers lead, but the Pennsylvania oarsmen took second place by two lengths.

There was a high wind blowing which frequently raised the whitecaps on the water, and not until 8 o'clock was there enough calm to warrant the coaches sending the eights to their posts. Then there were further delays. At the first trial Capt. Edmonston broke his oar after three starts, again the three crews were lined up and again to no purpose.

The second time, Lea in the Quaker shell.
